Eugene Delacroix's Letters

- Eugene Delacroix's Letters, online since the 1st September 2010 on the Louvre Museum server. Directed by Barthélémy Jobert (André Chastel Centre) and Christophe Leribault (Louvre Museum/Delacroix Museum); within the Chastel Centre: design and execution of Catherine Limousin, Thierry Laugée, and Geneviève-Marie Marion – public deal with OPIXIDO -, in collaboration with Viviane Benoît-Renault, Ronan Bouttier, Jérémy Cerman, Sylvain Cordier, Isabelle Havard, Émilie Martin-Neute and Thomas Renard. Project « Corpus » chosen by the ANR (National Agency for Research).

The result of a partnership between the University Paris-Sorbonne – Paris IV and the André Chastel Centre on one hand, and the national museum Eugène Delacroix, attached to the Louvre Museum on the other hand, this database will make available all Eugène Delacroix's letters.

Besides the addition of many letters recovered since the publication of the 6 volumes of Delacroix's letters by André Joubin in the thirties, the entirety of the transcriptions deserved to be looked at again and the notes completely renewed. This important team-work, funded by the National Agency for Research, aims to offer online a diplomatic transcription of the letters (along with pictures of the manuscripts when possible), a modernized version, interactive notes and an index of the letters. This database continues to expand each year with the addition of many letters.

Conbavil database

- Conbavil database : analytical reading of the Civil Buildings Council's sessions minutes (1795-1840). Database started by Werner Szambien and Françoise Boudon, partnership between Chastel Centre, the National Archives and the INHA.

From 1795 onward, the Civil Buildings Council, bringing together the most outstanding talents of French architecture, meets several times a week to decide on projects submitted to their examination. The minutes of these sessions are kept in the sub-series F21* of the National Archives.

These minutes being until now difficult to access, the André Chastel Centre has undertaken to create a database based on the reading of some of the registers of the series. This database, named CONBAVIL for CONSEIL (council) des BATiments CIVILs (of the Civil Buildings), the result of a partnership between the André Chastel Centre, the National Archives and the INHA, contains the analytical reading of the 26900 reports placed in the 66 first registers of the minutes of the Civil Buildings Council, i.e. the years 1795-1840 (F21*2470 à F21*2536), and the digitalized images of the projects accepted during this period, for the first time matched to the reports relating to them.
